Award honors educator's work

Ralph J. Woodin, who has kept busy with community and professional activities since his retirement as an educator in 1973, received the Most Accomplished Senior award Saturday.

James McGavran, seniors editor for The Dispatch, presented the award during the Seniors Independence Days program, an educational program sponsored by Friendship Village of Dublin.

Woodin, 75, of Upper Arlington, was an agricultural education professor at Ohio State University for 33 years. He has written more than 100 articles and received numerous awards for his work in agricultural and vocational education.
